

Associate Professor Nguyen Quoc Huy, MD, PhD

Director – Vietnam University of Traditional Medicine
Deputy Secretary of the Party Committee – Vietnam University of Traditional Medicine

Professional Biography

Associate Professor Nguyen Quoc Huy is an academic leader in the field of traditional medicine education and healthcare management in Vietnam. Professional work focuses on the development of traditional medicine education, medical training, and the advancement of academic and research activities in traditional medicine.

Appointed Director of the Vietnam University of Traditional Medicine in 2021 by the Ministry of Health, leadership responsibilities include strengthening educational quality, modernizing academic curricula, and expanding scientific research in traditional medicine and medicinal herbs. Institutional development has also emphasized the integration of traditional medicine education with modern medical training and the promotion of international cooperation in education and research.

Professional experience includes previous service as Deputy Director of the Vietnam University of Traditional Medicine, responsible for academic affairs and professional training, as well as leadership roles within the Ministry of Health, including Head of the Training Division of the Department of Science, Technology and Training.

Clinical and Research Expertise

- Traditional medicine education and academic development
- Medical education and curriculum development
- Research in traditional medicine and medicinal herbs
- Healthcare management and institutional development
- Integration of traditional medicine with modern medical education

International Academic Activities

Participation in academic cooperation programs, scientific conferences, and professional exchanges related to traditional medicine education and research. Academic activities include collaboration with universities, hospitals, and research institutions to strengthen education, training, and research capacity in traditional medicine.

Areas of Academic Interest

- Development of competency-based medical education in traditional medicine
- Traditional medicine research and medicinal herbs
- Academic program development in traditional medicine
- Integration of traditional medicine education with modern medical training
- Institutional development and healthcare education management

International Contributions

Professional activities contribute to strengthening the development of traditional medicine education in Vietnam and promoting collaboration between academic institutions, healthcare organizations, and research centers. Contributions include advancing medical education, promoting research innovation, and expanding international cooperation in traditional medicine.

Keynote Profile

Associate Professor Nguyen Quoc Huy is recognized for leadership in traditional medicine education and academic development in Vietnam. Keynote presentations focus on the modernization of traditional medicine education, integration of traditional medicine with contemporary medical training, and the development of academic and research collaboration in traditional medicine.